AN EDITORIAL

I AM THANKFUL

PARTICIPATE "IN OUR CHURCH'S TRADITIONAL EXPRESSION OF THANKS BY THE GIVING OF AN OFFERING FOR MISSIONS."

IT HAS OCCURRED TO ME that today is an appropriate time for me to write a "Thanksgiving" editorial for 1983, for today is Thanksgiving, 1982. My wife and I just ate our Thanksgiving dinner. We both had "eye of round" beef, a small salad and a Jell-O-type pudding for dessert. You see, we are on an airplane, having just completed one foreign assignment and on our way to another. Most of today will be spent in airports and airplanes.

True, it would be great to be with the family. The children are scattered, however, and we are trusting they are enjoying a traditional Thanksgiving Day. My father is in the hospital with an uncertain future. I will admit to a desire to be at his side. Yet, in my heart I am filled to overflowing with thanksgiving and praise. At the airport, bidding us good-bye, were missionaries of my church, some of God's very best. In that group are four young people who are second-generation Nazarene missionaries. They are excited and enthusiastic over their assignments. Their ministries are identified by success. What an inspiration they have been to us!

This evening we will be met by another missionary. His situation is unique in that he is himself a direct product of missionary effort. Many years ago a pioneer preacher came into his village in southern Mexico, and his mother was one of the first converts. Subsequently, her son became the first missionary to be sent out by the Mexican Church of the Nazarene.

About now we are high over the country of Guatemala. This is where a missionary influenced a little girl, drawing her into a relationship with Jesus Christ. The little girl grew to become a great Christian, eventually moving to Germany. Her son became one of the first converts to Christ under our ministry while serving there and is today the district superintendent of the Church of the Nazarene in Middle Europe.

It is Thanksgiving Day, and we are having a great day giving thanks. It just may be remembered as one of the best holidays we have ever enjoyed. If and when this is printed, it will be at least one year later. It seemed important to express my thoughts while feeling so exhilarated in my heart.

Remembrances of this day will prompt me next year to active participation in our church's traditional expression of thanks by the giving of an offering for missions. These yearly investments have truly been blessed by God and multiplied many times over.

The captain just announced we are beginning to descend. I will probably remain a little "high," however, in thanksgiving and praise to God.

A STRING OF SUPERLATIVES
by L. S. OLIVER

In 2 Corinthians 9:8 Paul writes, “And God is able to make all grace abound toward you; that ye, always having all sufficiency in all things, may abound to every good work.”

This verse is loaded with an almost impossible weight of meaning. It sparkles and scintillates in a surprising setting—a call for a collection from Christians in Corinth to meet the needs of their Jewish brethren in Jerusalem! Paul addresses this temporal situation in the light of eternal provision. He links together one superlative after another to establish a universal principle.

First, he calls our attention to the powerful source: “God is able.” God’s ability is a recurrent theme in the Scriptures. Hebrews 2:18 informs us that “He is able to succur them that are tempted.” Hebrews 7:25 states, “He is able also to save them to the uttermost.” Jude 24, “Able to keep you from falling.” Philippians 3:21, “Able even to subdue all things unto himself.” 2 Timothy 1:12, “Able to keep that which I have committed unto him against that day.” Ephesians 3:20, “Able to do exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think.” This means He is able to succor the tempted; to save the fallen; to support the falling; to subdue all things; to secure all we have committed to Him in the day of judgment; and to surprise us with an abundance exceeding our capabilities in asking and thinking.

John Spencer said, “Christ is full and sufficient for all His people; righteousness to cover all their sins, plenty enough to supply all their wants, grace enough to subdue all their lusts, wisdom enough to vanquish all their enemies, virtue enough to cure all their diseases, fulness enough to save them to the utmost. He is bread, wine, milk, living waters, to feed them; He is a Physician to heal them; a Counselor to advise them, a Captain to defend them; a Prince to rule; a Prophet to teach; a Priest to make atonement for them; a Husband to protect; a Father to provide; a Brother to relieve; a Foundation to support; a Root to quicken; a Head to guide; a Treasure to enrich; a Sun to enlighten; and a Fountain to cleanse, so that as the one ocean hath more waters than all the rivers of the world, and one sun more light than all the luminaries in heaven, so one Christ is more to a poor soul than if it had all the world a thousand times over.”

God’s ability is best seen in intimate situations. God’s ability finds expression in grace abounding. Consequently, the powerful source provides a plentiful supply: “God is able to make all grace abound toward you; that ye always having all sufficiency in all things...”

Paul uses the word “grace” to sum up all of the undeserved, unmerited favors and blessings that come into our lives because of, and through, the Lord Jesus Christ. “All grace” refers to the many sided expressions of that grace operating in our life situations. The complacency-shattering truth is that His grace abounds toward us always! His grace making us always all sufficient in all things speaks of constancy! This provides for a diminution of the roller coaster effect of spiritual ups and downs.

The secret of spiritual competence is certainly to be found in the words, “having all sufficiency in all things.” J. Sidlow Baxter has said, “Never too much, never too little, but perfect adequacy; never too soon, never too late, but timed to the tick of the clock and to the beat of the heart. Grace for tomorrow’s needs will not come today. Grace for today will not come tomorrow.”

Do you realize that God has spoken these things to you? It is grace abounding toward you so that you may have all sufficiency in all things always. He declares, “My grace is sufficient for you.”

The final link in this string of superlatives is seen in the words, “That ye may abound to every good work.” Here is the purposeful service.

God’s grace, making you all sufficient in all things, is in order that you “may abound in every good work.”

James Stewart has said, “Wherever you see religion self-centered and introverted, clutching the comforts of God to its own particular need and unable to see beyond that—whenever I treat the gospel as a kind of prescription to help relax, to secure me against what is difficult and disagreeable—well, it may call itself Christian, but it is an appalling caricature of Christ’s intention.” To that I respond with a hearty “amen.” The purpose of God’s enabling grace is that we may mediate the same gift to other struggling lives that need Him so desperately.

CONVICT CONCOURS

I want to thank you for your article in the May 1 issue, "Some Convicts Are Con Men."

I am an inmate in Texas. It is very common in prison to learn of someone who is using Christ’s Church for personal gain.

A letter that is a request for money should automatically become suspect. Money should NEVER be sent to an inmate no matter what claims are being made unless the person who sends the money has personal knowledge of the inmate and the purpose for which the money is being used.

References are, as you stated, easily checked. They must be checked.

God’s people are very generous and caring. If a person wishes to assist a prisoner, that is fine and is specifically stated in the Scriptures. Please do not put yourself in the position of financing some scheme for the devil.

The Christian brotherhood in prisons is strong and growing. We are very jealous of the name of the Lord.

OBVIOUS LESSON

How about that? Educators were recently called to the White House where their grades were read aloud and their “britches blistered.” They were told in part that education was mediocre, that the curriculum contained too many appetizers and desserts and not enough basics.

Indeed, the American educational system has for 20 years been going downhill on a crosstown bus.

For the church, there is a lesson from our schools that is too obvious to require elaboration.

REFRESHED AND GRATIFIED

How refreshing and gratifying to read Jack Conn’s insights regarding sanctification and holiness ("Purge Me with Nitrogen," May 15, 1983). It has been my observation that we Nazarenes too often emphasize the experience of sanctification at the cost of underemphasizing the relationship of holiness. Clearly, the New Testament resembles the experience.

He came
To show us
God
And doing it
Was crucified
Because men
Could not bear
The blinding light
Of holiness
Upon their lives.

Through the ages
Men have seen
That light
And have gone out
To fight wild beasts,
Suffer imprisonment
And die at the stake
Singing the songs
Of victory
Within our day
Men saw that flame
Of holiness
And were transformed.
Outlawed
From congregations
Who refused to hear
They preached
In tents,
In rented halls,
In homes
And field.
They bore the scorn,
The rocks,
The loss of friends,
Rejoicing
That they Were counted worthy
To suffer in His Name.

Ambitions, dreams,
Success,
Wealth, power, and fame
Burned to ashes
At His feet
As they went out
In nameless dedication
To preach God’s holiness
Across the land.

Small wonder then
That from that crucible
A church was born.
Named for the Nazarene
It spanned the nation
Leaped on to Britain
And across the seas
To half a dozen continents.

They preached
In many languages
But the message
Never changed:
—Self crucified
Upon the altar
Of God’s holiness;
The root of sin
Burned and cleansed
From human hearts.

Those fearless ones
Who first proclaimed
That glorious message
Of deliverance
Are now with God.
Their song on earth is silent,
Their message stilled.
And if the world
Is ever going to know
The truth He came
To teach us
Then we must tell it;
And if the song
Of victory over sin
Is to be sung today
Then we must sing it.
In this dark hour
Of failing nations,
War, famine, and despair;
When sin, triumphant,
Sits in seats of government
And walks our city streets,
Let not the lust for power,
Prestige, or praise of men
Dim or destroy
That message
Jesus died to bring.

Thirteen thousand preachers,
Seven hundred thousand Nazarenes
Could take the world
For Christ
If we would let
The white hot light
Of holiness
Set us aflame
And the voice of God
Pour through our lips
The song of holiness
And victory.

SEPTEMBER 15, 1983
Right after David had been anointed king by all of Israel at Hebron (1 Chronicles 11:1), many men began to be challenged by the need to destroy their enemies so the people could possess and settle the land God had promised them. Outstanding men from the various tribes of Israel offered their services to the new king.

The circumstances and qualifications of these men remind me of the students who enroll at Nazarene Bible College each year. NBC was established by the Church of the Nazarene for the purpose of adult education. There is no finer place for men and women beyond normal college age to prepare for various ministries in the church than at the Bible college in Colorado Springs. Note some of the similarities as shown in 1 Chronicles 12.

The men of Israel volunteered their services to the new king (vv. 22, 38). They realized there was a need in Israel. In their hearts they felt God was calling them to give themselves to a worthwhile cause. There was an enemy of the people that needed to be driven out of the land and destroyed. They could do it!

These men were ready for battle (vv. 23, 33). Their past experiences had revealed in them various gifts and abilities that God could use for His glory and the people’s good. They had been developing their skills, but they now needed to come together as a group to refine their skills, to further develop their knowledge and abilities, and to learn how to work together for a common cause. Their education was not complete, they responded.

These soldiers of the king were brave (v. 25). They were committed to the task at hand and were determined to give their lives if need be. The cause was bigger than themselves.

Verse 27 states that they were leaders of their own families. As they had led their own families in the past, they now experienced a unity and strength through their continued leadership in the battle.

It was said that these men had a good reputation among their relatives (v. 30). Their past performances and relationships within their immediate families were conducted with such integrity and honesty that their own families had confidence in them. This added greatly to their effectiveness in the service of the king.

They had a vision of what needed to be done (v. 38). Their goal was to make David king over the whole land as God had instructed them. They would let nothing distract them now. It was good of God to call them and to allow them the opportunity to serve Him in this manner. The God who called them would help them!

They arrived in the camp with shield and spear (v. 24, 37). They brought what they had. They knew ho use these weapons and they were willing to use them for the battle. God blessed them for going and giving their undivided hearts (vv. 33, 37). They did not bad-mouth the leadership God had given to them. They did not agree with everything, but they needed the strength that comes with unity and working together as soldiers and king.

The description of the men who offered themselves to a tribe has intrigued me. They were the sons of Issachar, described as “men who understood the times, with knowledge of what Israel should do” (v. 11, NASB). Timing is important in fulfilling God’s will for life and service. These men of Issachar evidently had an anointed sense of wisdom and understanding. Where did they get it? Obviously, from the Lord and the church.

The Rabbinical tradition suggests that the sons of Issachar gave themselves intently to a study of the laws of God, along with His guidance for life. This is where they learned to be wise and to understand life. It works that way every time! There is much wisdom and understanding to be gained as a person studies the Scriptures. The real mission of Nazarene College is to provide a time and place for mature men to learn from God and from godly professors to live and to share life with others.

In this passage of Scripture there is another fascinating thought about the men of Israel and students at NBC. Verse 40 states that others who were interested in the cause of the king, but who were not called to spare for battle, did bring food and other provisions that the soldiers could be well cared for as they spared and fought.

NBC has a Pantry Fund and a Samaritan Fund to assist students in times of crisis. One fund is limited to $100 for food when a family experiences a financial crunch. The other fund assists a student and his family in a small way when there is an emergency such as loss of job, sickness, or other serious need. The amount of assistance is minimal, but it does mean a lot to a student when he is broke.

Contributions to this fund are made by other students, college personnel, and interested friends. One student, when completing his education at NBC, came recently to offer a donation to the Pantry Fund, because he had realized how much it meant to him in a time of need.

This story from Israel’s history concludes with the statement, “There was joy indeed in Israel (1 Chron. 12:40, NASB). God blessed the men of valor as they gave themselves to prepare for and do battle for the Lord and for King David. Joy and blessing abound. God blessed them for going and giving their undivided hearts for a ministry of preaching, Christian education, or church music. And joy and blessing also to those who, like Israel, join together in the cause of need, by making contributions to meet the needs of students and families as they prepare for service to God and the church.

And there is joy at NBC!

OCCUPATION—or Inspiration?

by JAMES L. SANKEY

T WAS LATE, not the time you would ordinarily schedule a testimony meeting. But it’s a long drive by bus from Salina, Kans., to Colorado Springs, and the veteran driver seemed to know what was expected. After our rest stop he pulled out a long extension cord, attached it to the bus public address system, and remarked, “I know these people will want to talk a lot.”

We were on our return trip from Kansas City, where the senior students from Nazarene Bible College had toured our Nazarene Headquarters and Publishing House. This is a high point for our graduates, as the majority of these men and women have never had this opportunity and they really look forward to it. It is hosted and financed by the Nazarene Publishing House and the purpose is to acquaint the students with the organization, operation, and facilities of NPH, our International Headquarters, and our seminary.

So for a day and a half we had been on a whirlwind tour that had been informational and inspirational. The seniors had enjoyed rubbing shoulders with Publishing House employees, editors, executives, and secretaries at our Headquarters, and with faculty and students at the seminary and Mid-America Nazarene College—and now we were on our way home.

It was the longest testimony meeting I can ever remember attending. One after the other of these seniors would share how God had called them to the ministry, how He had helped them over so many hurdles during their years in college, and how their dependence was completely on Him to guide them to a place of service after graduation. Many of them testified that the only reason they were there today was because they served a “God of a second-chance.”

As I listened to their words, and as we sang their favorite songs after each testimony, I couldn’t help but think how the influence of these men and women would spread out across our churches over the next few years.

After midnight, as snow-white Pikes Peak gleamed ahead in the moonlight, I thanked God for placing me in this all-important place of ministry.

“Truly, these students are not only my occupation, they are my inspiration.”

WHO NEEDS A FAMILY NIGHT

"Is it not completely reasonable to devote one night per week to 'familyhood'—to talking, sharing, playing, and worshiping as a distinct, unique, exclusive family unit?"

There was a time when every night was family night, with few exceptions. With nowhere to go, no way to get there (except by foot or horse), and no money for mere entertainment, family togetherness was a fact of life. Entertainment was pursued and enjoyed, of course, but like many other commodities, it was typically simple, homemade, and focused on the family unit.

There was no TV, of course, so families had the time and the opportunity, and perhaps even the social need to talk to each other, to listen to each other, to think and dream and plan and share together.

And there was less to pull them apart. They were not exposed to a dizzying variety of life-styles, vocational opportunities, value systems, and geographical locations. For the most part the same cultural influences impacted upon parents and children alike and tended to produce a unity of experience, purpose, and goals in family and community life.

Perhaps this is a major reason family life seemed to work better then. Some have concluded that the authoritarian family structure of that day was the key to family solidarity and successful childrearing. But was it really authoritarianism that produced good family relationships, or have we simplistically ascribed to it the credit actually due to a whole complex of social factors that encouraged family cohesion?

Without in any way slighting the importance of appropriate discipline in family life, it is surely obvious that the best of discipline will never in and of itself produce the warm and nurturing atmosphere that can make family life so genuinely satisfying. For this, there must be quality relationships among family members. And quality relationships come about only where there is sharing, understanding, talking, listening, common experience, and mutual respect.

Remember the Great Example, Jesus Christ. For three and a half years He walked and talked with His disciples. Not as an aloof and superior god, but as a man, He shared their homes, their lives, their vocational pursuits, their spiritual frustrations and doubts. How many literal miles He walked with them can never be known. But only after He had walked those many miles, both literally and figuratively, and climaxed it with His death, and validated both His life and His death by the resurrection, did those disciples have such faith and loyalty that they were willing to die for Him. Certainly His death is of particular theological significance, but without His life would ever have been noticed? Could He have commanded the enduring love and loyalty of His disciples without the quality of relationships He developed across three years of intense love, shared intimacy, and common human experience?

Be thankful, parents, that you will likely have more than those years in which to establish quality relationships with your children. But be assured that their love and loyalty will not develop adequately without it.

Now back to the beginning. Family togetherness was once a fact...
In our current world this is no longer true. There’s no turning back the clock even if we really wanted to! We have no choice but to live in the busy, demanding, varied, and impersonal world we have inherited and helped to create. But when will you “walk” with your children? When will you listen to those confidences that can only be shared in an atmosphere of casual leisure, unhurried, and free of tension and pressure? When will you tune into their world and let them tune into yours? When will you share experiences, exchange ideas, and develop mutual trust and respect?

No, we cannot recapture yesterday. But if we hope to salvage some worthy values of yesterday in a modern culture that seems inherently detrimental to family life, there must be deliberate commitment and purpose—a considered decision to place a high priority on family values. It won’t happen by accident. And it won’t happen through attempts to defy the inescapable realities of our modern age. Retreat into yesterday is an impossible, self-deceiving fantasy. Don’t let it be the trap that diverts you from facing today’s challenges with intelligence, courage, and realism.

Our world is a busy world, but is not completely reasonable to delete one night per week to “familyhood”—to talking, sharing, playing, and worshipping as a distinct, exclusive family unit? Certainly daily family worship is ideal, but even a weekly time for sharing individual and family concerns and praying over them together would be a great stride forward for many families. The “generation gap” is especially prevalent in rapidly changing cultures such as ours. If families will spend even one night a week “building bridges” together, there is a good chance both generations can learn to handle and respect their differences. A happy night carries no guarantees the future of its participants and some problems may indeed be deep for what is essentially preventive medicine), but hundreds of families are finding that a nightly family fun, lit worship, and family communion can generate a lot of family understanding, comfort, and cohesion and is its own reward, without regard to future outcomes.

So who needs a family night? Who doesn’t need a family night? What family can afford to do less on its own behalf? Our general church has recommended Monday night as a family night, but any night consistently observed can work equally well. Pastors promote it. Laymen, insist on it. Don’t let your family life be drowned in an overcrowded schedule. “For what is a man profited, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul”—or his family?

Spiritual Life On Campus

by ROSS W. HAYSLIP

Four Chapel Services each week are enjoyed by the students of Nazarene Bible College. These are times of spiritual refreshing and uplift as we meet together for song, prayer, messages of encouragement, and fellowship. The basic purpose of the chapel service is worship. To really worship we must sense the presence of God. Our students need the sense of this presence in their lives as an anchor for their faith.

Student prayer meetings are conducted by chaplains elected by their fellow students. These are regular scheduled times for prayer and praise where the students gather together in a relaxed atmosphere in His name. Our people have found that in prayer for each other and taking the needs of their fellow students to God, they get blessing and help for themselves.

The college revival services are led by evangelists who have felt the call of God to ministry in the field of spiritual renewal. Needs are met at the altar of prayer as the Holy Spirit gives direction. The sounds of repentant weeping and the notes of praise for victories are heard during these times of refreshing.

One of the great challenges here at Nazarene Bible College is to meet the spiritual needs as well as the mental hunger of our students. Each class period is opened with prayer and it is not uncommon to take time for the sharing of words of testimonies and choruses of song.

The notes from our bell tower in the midst of the Apostles Court chime forth each hour. The sound of the Carillon echoes the words of a prayer:

Lord, through the hour
Be Thou our guide:
So, by Thy power
No foot shall slide.

ROSS W. HAYSLIP is the chaplain at Nazarene Bible College in Colorado Springs, Colorado.
I WAS STANDING in my usual place greeting our worshipers as they exited the sanctuary. One remained. She said, “I want to thank you for being there when my husband needed you recently. We are so glad God worked everything out all right.” While we stood in the doorway rejoicing over answered prayer, my mind rapidly returned to a junior boys’ Sunday School class in Shawmut, Ala.

Flashing across my memory was the story of a short man, a crowded road, and a sycamore tree. The short man wanted to see Jesus but could not because of the crowd, so he used a grandstand seat in the sycamore tree. His conspicuous perch drew the attention of Jesus. Silence gripped the crowd as Jesus stopped and said, “Zacchaeus, come down immediately.”

A question about Zacchaeus has followed me through these years: Did he know what the cost would be if he actually caught a glimpse of Jesus? I think not. His interest may have been only slightly greater than the crowd’s that lined Murfreesboro Road in Nashville in 1964 when President Lyndon Johnson brought his campaign to town. Most of us came to see the man who held the highest office in the land. That sighting did not change my vote. But the sighting from the sycamore tree changed Zacchaeus. Any time a man comes into the presence of the living Lord he never goes away the same. Zacchaeus responded to Christ’s love by pledging half his assets to the poor and promising to restore fourfold all money gained by cheating others. This act of restitution proved repentant faith was present. Jesus’ response was simple: “Today salvation has come to this house.”

As we closed our conversation with prayer, we did not know if a heavy fine would be levied, or if time in jail would be required, or if a demotion would result. We only knew that God’s Holy Spirit would be at work.

Time revealed the working of God. An appointment was made with his superior. The story was told. An executive substance he said, “I have recently gotten right with God. And I have some things that I’ve acquired that do not rightfully belong to me. I am willing to pay for them, go to jail, return them—whatever is right.”

The short of it was that he returned the articles and God replaced them with greater joy and the sweetness of His presence. He still has victory.

The necessity of restitution arises out of the nature of true repentance. John the Baptist commanded, “Produce fruit in keeping with repentance.”

THE FIRST TIME

How much simpler would be all my problems
If the first time He spoke I would listen.
If the first time He whispered I’d hear.
And what comfort I’d find in my sorrows,
With what peace would my spirit be filled.
If the first time He reached out I’d be there,
If the first time He touched me I’d yield.
Oh, what joy would be mine for the claimin’
How less often I’d worry and grieve,
If the first time He gave I’d accept it,
If the first time He blessed I’d receive.
For all heaven is at my disposal,
All the treasures of glory sublime, If this
I but learn—not to tarry,
But to respond to His love the first time.

...from sin, involving an attempt to make amends for our ongoing. This requires humility and deep commitment.

The things settled at an altar ofayer must also be settled before fellow men. The Bible knows of subjective religion that is between God and man only. The Bible shes a holiness that is vertical and God and horizontal toward men. A clean heart necessitates an hands. The Bible knows of no religion that is purely private. John said, “The Bible knows no holiness but Social holiness.” To tie a thing with God in prayer means that the newfound victory bring about dynamic changes the way we live in the world. Prior commitment means that, if he directs, one will return to an red party with an apology.

I ve a sycamore tree in memory to be forgotten. As a result of chaeus and God’s Spirit, a htened young teenager knocked a door not a block from the altar where God had forgiven. “May I ask with Mr. White,” I said.

Just a minute,” Mrs. White replied. In seconds they returned to the door. By this time my knees vi-teed. Feet desired rapid departure, but the Spirit refused to way.

Yes,” Mr. White said. “Can I see you?”

Mr. White, my name is Jerry Thomas. I have an apology to make to you,” I said. “Whatever for?” asked. “Do you remember a month ago a rock came through your living room window? It was a huge rock that did and I want to make it right.”

doubtedly his heart was soft—by my tears and my obvious oesnness. His forgiving reply is to be forgotten: “That’s all, son. I’ve already fixed the roof of glass. It was only a few and a little time. I’m just glad I have a desire to do the right g. Just don’t think another thing about it.”

All I have thought more about here is no way I’d trade the victory I found and kept that day. This still comes sometimes as I re-in a right relationship with and people. Thank God for more trees.

NAZARENE ROOTS

Dr. Reynolds tips his hat while traveling through India shortly after his 60th birthday.

H. F. REYNOLDS AND THE WORLD-WIDE TOUR, 1914

Five years after our founding General Assembly in 1908, General Superintendent H. F. Reynolds set sail from San Francisco with a party of 10 new Nazarene missionaries. With “such singing, praying and shouting as has never been heard on the deck of any ship,” Reynolds began a tour of Nazarene missions that would take him around the world.

Such a trip, through the world’s most undeveloped regions, would have severely tested anyone in 1914 and must have been truly imposing for the 60-year-old Reynolds. The irregularity of transportation, communications, food, and lodging all proved difficult obstacles for travelers. The outbreak of World War I turned the last leg of his journey into a dangerous game of cat and mouse with the German and British Navies. At least one ship on which Reynolds attempted to gain passage was sunk, while another was captured. Almost a full year after his departure, the bray of a New York City foghorn brought tears to Dr. Reynold’s eyes as he strained for the sight of home, “overcome by the sense of God’s goodness in bringing him safely all the way.”

In spite of the difficulties, Dr. Reynold’s “World-Wide Missions Tour” proved one of the most significant in the development of the Church of the Nazarene. It provided the first personal contact for our missionaries with their newly organized church. Many of the fields, including Africa, operated without the benefit of any ordained elders until visited by Dr. Reynolds. The letters and photographs mailed home were eagerly read by Nazarenes in The Other Sheep during its first year of production.

Our China mission field, which later became one of our largest before the disruptions of World War II, was planted by Dr. Reynolds and his band during this trip. Other fields also received reinforcements and assistance from the tour, and before coming home, Dr. Reynolds visited with George Sharpe and the Pentecostal Church of Scotland. This British holiness body would join the Church of the Nazarene within a year after Dr. Reynold’s visit. Furthermore, a collection of almost 1,200 photographs and the body of letters from this World Tour vividly document our missionary work during that first decade.

More than simply a grand gesture, the World-Wide Missions Tour of 1914 greatly strengthened our mission fields and tied us closer together as a people for worship and work, strengthening our commitment to Nazarene World Missions.

SEPTEMBER 15, 1983
IN JANUARY 1982 I awakened at 3:45 a.m. That was not unusual. For several weeks, at the same hour, God had been awakening me from deep sleep to pray for revival for myself and North St. Paul Church of the Nazarene. But on this particular morning God spoke clearly to me about a bus for the church—not just any bus, not a school bus, but a bus of quite some magnitude. The lines were so finely drawn there could be no mistake about the type of bus God wanted us to have.

I argued with God. “I don’t have the money to buy a bus.”

“You will have it, when it is needed,” He said.

“But, God, our church doesn’t need a bus.”

“I know, but it will when I am ready.”

“All right, God,” I agreed. And I put it on the back burner waiting for further direction from God, for Isaiah has said, “They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength…” and some quite vivid results are found in the biblical account that follows.

Three months passed and again I was awakened early in the morning. I was impressed that I should begin looking for God’s bus.

The following Saturday I was making a Sunday School call. When I left that home it was 4 p.m. and most places of business were closed for the weekend. But I felt the Lord was telling me to stop at a certain place on my way home that dealt in campers and other vehicles.

Ted Kerr is a retired carpenter and a member of North St. Paul, Minnesota, Church of the Nazarene.

Nina Beegle is assistant editor of the Preacher’s Magazine at International Headquarters of the Church of the Nazarene in Kansas City, Missouri.

“But, Lord, it’s Saturday. They’ll be closed,” I responded. Nevertheless, I cloverleafed over to the place and to my surprise it was open. I met the owner told him how God has asked me to find a bus and that was my reason for being there.

“Ted, I’m glad you told me the story,” he said, “nothing on my lot is for sale. I don’t own a single one of the equipment you see here. I only rent space to people to park their vehicles in the wintertime. I have the key to that bus you want to look at. I could show it to you if I wanted to. Besides it’s all camper equipped, self-contained, and would not be of your purposes at all.”

“Sir,” I said, “do you know the man who owns the bus?”

“Yes.”

“Could you give me his name and address and phone number? Maybe he could tell me where to get one like it, for I have been advised to buy a bus similar to that one.”

The man, out of kindness, called Mr. Adams, owner of the bus, for me. Mr. Adams in turn gave me the name and phone number of a man named Phil who dealt in used buses.

I went home and phoned Phil.

“I have in my garage three buses like the one you are describing,” answered Phil, “one of which is the bus I ever purchased for resale. Would you like to see them? What about Monday at 2 p.m.?”

With great excitement Monday morning, my wife Maxine; our pastor, Kelly Davis; and his wife, Sandy; motored to Meyer, Minn., to see the bus. When we looked it over, I was convinced this was God’s bus. He wanted me to buy. Phil stated his terms and agreed to it when I wanted it.

“As soon as possible,” I answered. “I’ll let you know in the next couple of days.”

Ten days later I made the down payment. Delivery date was set for April 1. Time passed and I did where the money would be coming from, for I didn’t have that kind of money in my savings and checking accounts. Now it was my turn to ask God questions.

Look, Lord, You told me to buy this bus, and You did. Now, I’ve followed Your instructions. You said the money would be there when I needed it. Where is it? I know You’ll see me through because I’ve followed You completely.”

Why hadn’t God talked to anyone else about this?
I couldn’t answer. But I saw in the Bible that God typically placed responsibility on the shoulders of one son whom He chose to execute His plan. Why did He speak only to me? I do not know. But He did, and He answered, and now it looked like it was up to me to find a way to finance the purchase.

After talking to three or four financial institutions, each of whom would finance a bus, I prayed earnestly that night, “God, please, by morning I would appreciate Your answer to the financing of this bus.”

Well, I got my answer, and on April 1, checkbook in hand, and with around eight excited young men from church, I brought the bus home to North St. Paul Church of the Nazarene.

The bus took boys and girls and young folks to camp, ups to other churches for work days, religious activities, and revival meetings, to city-wide meetings, and tball team to games. But for the most part it sat in the driveway waiting.

I was after we sent a flyer to the pastors on the district announcing that the bus would be taking boys 3g and girls to camp that Pastor Ken Wood of Rochester Church called. Could the bus be used to get a group of people from Rochester to the district assembly?

Several of our area churches were working with refugees, and Rochester Church ministers to a large crop of Cambodians. So it was that we went to Rochest, picked up 42 Cambodians, brought them to North St. Paul, and let them sleep on the gym floor that night. Sunday morning at 6:00 we took them to district assembly and returned them that evening to Chester. God was working out His plan for His bus.

Well, I was hooked from then on. We contacted an information service and learned there are 16,000 refugees in the Twin Cities (St. Paul/Minneapolis) alone.

When we held our first Bible study in the apartment of Cambodians, 45 persons were present, and it has been go ever since.

God isn’t waking me up at 3:45 a.m. anymore, but He’s sure keeping that bus busy since our church got involved in ministry to Cambodians. Transportation is, of course, a real problem for most of the refugees.
The bus comfortably seats 40 grown-ups and a driver, but you’d be surprised how many people you can get into a 40-passenger bus, depending on how badly you want to go somewhere. We’ve had as many as 67 Cambodians on at once. Other times we’ve had to make two trips to get them all to one service.

And Nancy was right! What a privilege! What a challenge! In each home we visit we are told to go to this one and that one. It is not uncommon for three or four generations of a family to be in one house. One home we visited had 25 family members, another 17.
The field around us is ready to harvest.

Maxine and I are retired, but God is not through with us yet. We’re excited about what He’s allowing us to do—until He retires us.

EIGHT GENEROUS PEOPLE
by CAROL McGINNIS

THE 10-MEMBER Faith Indian Church of the Nazarene was struggling to meet its financial obligations—$300 a month utility bills, insurance payments, and the pastor’s weekly salary of $110.

“We were having a terrible time,” recalls Mary Martinez. Mrs. Martinez is the wife of the Rev. Richard Martinez, pastor of the church located near the 450-acre Saginaw Chippewa Indian Reservation in Isabella County, Mich.

“The church’s insurance was going to expire,” Mrs. Martinez said, “and the church had gotten behind in my husband’s salary. One week they could only give us $50.00, another week $60.00. I said to myself, ‘Something’s got to give.’”

And then February 1 arrived and with it checks from the federal government to descendants of the Saginaw, Swan Creek, and Black River bands of the Chippewa Indians. The checks, averaging $3,000, were long-awaited compensation for over 7 million acres of land ceded to the United States in an 1819 treaty. More than 3,000 Chippewas nationwide received a share of a $16.7 million settlement.

For many Chippewas it was a time to celebrate, to buy much-needed household and personal items. For some Chippewas it was a time to help the Nazarene church with its debts.

The help began when one couple, who have five children of their own, went directly to the parsonage after cashing their check. They gave $700 to the church treasury and $100 to the Martinez family.

“They did that before taking care of any of their own needs,” Mrs. Martinez said. “I went right to the bank and then sat down and wrote check after check—for the insurance, the gas, the lights. I was so happy I didn’t know what to do.

“That family is fairly new to our church and it’s wonderful to see them growing in the Lord,” she added.

Other families gave the Martinez family used sets of living room and dining room furniture after buying new furniture.

“We appreciated it a lot,” Mrs. Martinez said, adding that prior to coming to the Faith Indian church in August 1981 she and her husband were students at the Nazarene Indian Bible College in Albuquerque, N.M.

“We weren’t expecting to take a church when we did and only had odds and ends for furniture,” she said.

On four or five different occasions, people gave the Martinez family money to go out to eat or to do something fun. Rev. and Mrs. Martinez have an 11-year-old daughter, Leanna, and two foster children, Marcella, age 3, and Jeremiah, age 2.

Some people didn’t want anyone to know they were giving gifts, Mrs. Martinez said. “One man slipped my husband some money as they shook hands after church.”

One couple took the Martinez family to Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., for a treat in May.

Mrs. Martinez said the most heartwarming gift came from a 30-year-old woman. “She’s unchurched and an alcoholic,” Mrs. Martinez explained. “She’s come to us several times for help. She and two other women put $70.00 in a nice card that said, ‘Thank you for being you.’ They said to be sure to take all the children out for dinner. All the gifts have touched my heart but that one most of all.”

All together, Mrs. Martinez estimated, $2,500 was given to the church treasury and $250 to the Martinez family.

The funds came from about eight “real generous people,” Mrs. Martinez said. “Of those, two have never even attended our church. They were people in the community who had called on us when they needed us. We surely didn’t expect anything from them.”

Now all the church’s bills are current, the church has caught up on the pastor’s salary, and there’s still money in the treasury.

In addition to paying bills, the congregation was also able to gravel the church’s circle driveway and have some electrical work done. Future improvements include painting the church basement and buying some children’s desks and chairs.

Of the 35 people who usually attend the church, 20 to 25 are children from unchurched homes. “We have a good children’s program,” Mrs. Martinez explained.

With the money given directly to the parsonage family, they purchased some sheets, blankets, and new clothes.

Mrs. Martinez said the generosity of the Chippewas was a pleasant surprise in light of the fact she and her husband are not members of the Chippewa tribe. Mrs. Martinez is half Cherokee and half French, and Mr. Martinez is half Sioux and half Spanish.

“We felt very grateful and shocked,” Mrs. Martinez said. “It renewed our faith and our love for God. He has ways of reaching out and meeting needs that we have no way of knowing about. It’s hard to find the words to say thank you.”
A FEW MUSICIANS are talented enough to make it as soloists, either as vocalists or instrumentalists. Most, however, are not capable enough—alone. But in an orchestra or a chorus, the nonsoloist has strong value and contribution.

A few ministers and churches may be talented enough to make it as “soloists.” Like musicians, however, most ministers and churches can never properly make it alone.

History has illustrated that. It has also verified that the greatest human needs have been met by Christians in concert: the “chorus,” the “orchestra.” In spite of the anti-institutionalism of the 1980s, churches in vital denominational relationship, Christians in vital church relationship, remain our greatest source of hope and potential impact.

ROBERT H. SCOTT is superintendent of the Southern California District. He resides in Orange, California.

We should not expend our energies attacking the “soloists.” But neither should we insult God’s mission or ignore the facts of history by “putting down” the “chorus” or the “orchestra.” The latter is probably a greater danger today than the former!

Remember, most of us, like it or not, are not soloist material. We can only make it in the chorus. If you can make it as soloist, God bless you. For the rest of us, may we devote ourselves to making music with the orchestra, not setting up minor chords, sending out sour notes, or dwelling on discordant sounds. We really do need each other, the family, our great denomination.

Come to think of it, almost all of the greatest soloists make their best presentation with an orchestra or chorus around them. With very few exceptions, therein is their talent most rewardingly received, and most lastingly remembered.

It’s not just tolerable to be a team member—it’s absolutely the most sensible thing to be!

My coat is rather shabby. Some would say I need a new one, but there are other things of more concern and the love of Jesus keeps a warm glow in my heart.

I could not get along without Him, but I may have to get along without a new coat for a while.

My car is small, and old by some folks’ standards. Sometimes I think I’d like a new one, but there are hundreds of people all over the world who are hungry—and it does get me there. Until it won’t do that any longer, I’ll get along.

My house is not on Nob Hill or Fifth Avenue. It’s also rather old, but it’s warm and cozy inside. Good neighbors and friends help fill it with love and warmth. It might be nice to have a new one, but God provided the means for this one, and I will be content.

I could list endlessly things that seem necessary, and I must admit that sometimes my wants do outrun my needs. Madison Avenue batters at us daily, telling of all the new wonders we need. My real needs, God supplies, oft’ in overflowing measure.

The greatest need of all, He met through the gift of His Son, Jesus Christ. He is my Savior, my Friend, my Comforter, my Guide, the Bread of Life and Living Water to my heart’s needs, And if I keep Him first, I need fear for naught else.

In His love and in His wisdom, He will supply!

UNWELCOME EVENTS frequently push their way into our lives. They never warn us of their approach. We can not keep them out. Yet our immediate and possibly our distant future is shaped by them. They are our constant problem. Why do these unwelcome visitors come to us?

Are we at the mercy of forces that are uncertain in their movements? Are we tossed around by chance or fate? Is our lack being out for the moment the explanation? Are we in the hands of unpredictable and unintelligent agents?

We settle our vacation; we make our business arrangements; we plan our church matters so that they may succeed. These plans have been carefully made, yet suddenly, out of the blue, they are frustrated by an unconnected cause.

Sickness can smite us without warning. Seldom do we see its present meaning. Yet it can make havoc of our lives. Affliction deeply concerns us because it effects us so comprehensively. It can limit our service for the Lord as it impedes our movements. One minister complained: "I am 60 and was just at my peak as a minister when I had a severe stroke. Now I can no longer do my work."

Opposition to us and to our ideas can arise quite suddenly. We have carefully sought God's will and have tried to follow it fully. Yet someone not only opposes us sharply, but also treats us badly. This is so hard to bear.

What a fine line may separate success and failure! We base our judgment on our experience and knowledge. We are so sure our project will succeed that we do not even consider failure to be possible. Yet in the terms we planned, we fail.

Friendship is one of our greatest joys; yet how easily a friendship can fall apart! I was present when two women who had been friends for many years were conversing. One of them made a tactless remark. It was answered by hostile criticism. The friendship was smashed beyond repair.

The alternative to bad luck or chance is a world in the hands of a Person that is stronger than any other being or force. This Person needs wisdom and knowledge as well as power. To work for our benefit He must also be kind and generous. We have that Person: God our Father. The world is in His providential control. If we can be confident that He is in charge of events, our outlook on life will be transformed.

For a Christian, frustration, sickness, opposition, failure, and losses are not accidents. They can be part of God's providential leading in promoting our spiritual growth.

A Christian man was serving with the American forces in Europe. He was hoping to get home quickly, eager to rejoin his lovely wife, and to see his son, who had been born just after he had left America. Suddenly he learned that he had been assigned to the Near East for one year. He was stunned.

Fifteen years later, as a mature Christian, he said in retrospect: "That delay shook my faith to its foundations. Yet during that last year away, I learned more of..."
God and His love for me than I had learned in any period of my life. That year is when I began to trust God completely.”

We need not indulge in self-pity. Nor need we say, “Why should this happen to me?” “If God loves me why did He not prevent it?” We need not think the unexpected and painful experiences occur because God has forgotten us. We know that God is always with us caring for us, preventing what is not good and proporcioning all the rest.

As we look to the past we may wonder if our present position would not have been better had we done differently. Should we be happier if we were some other person? Others seem to have the enjoyment that we don’t. Instead, we have frustration, sickness, opposition, failure, or broken relationships.

None of these considerations need ever bother us, because God has been and still is at work in them. Jesus explained God’s providential concern for us when he said, “The very hairs of your head are all numbered” (Matthew 10:30). The God who is concerned about such insignificant objects as our hairs is sure to be working in His providential and loving care for us. That is why, as Paul puts it, “all things work together for good to them that love God” (Romans 8:28).

Thinking back to the moment when the unwelcome events happened, we know we should not have chosen them. They grieved us. Yet when we reconsider them we see how wonderfully God’s hand has brightened their colour.

We move to the present. We are encouraged by what is happening when we see what God is doing. His providence can change the situation from a loss to a life of holiness.

Our experiences of the past and present condition our outlook on the future. We know God to be unchangeable and faithful. Earlier, God had transmuted the lead of unwelcome events to gold, so He can do so again in the future. We can look ahead with confidence and say with Paul, this event “shall turn to my salvation” (Philippians 1:19).

We realize that God has a plan for us and for our lives. We do not know its exact details, except as we see the page that is marked, “today.” We know that each of the succeeding pages has its special providences.

We need never fear that any enemies can come between us and God’s plan for our life. We are sure that God’s sovereignty will operate, for He is still on the throne of the universe.

We can be satisfied. We do not know what is coming to us, but we know that future events will have a beneficial purpose. Our determination is to do God’s will and seek His glory. They would be the result of any and every event.

Realizing our Father’s loving concern for us, we can praise Him whether we feel weakness, our plans are frustrated, we are opposed, we fail or our relationships fall apart.

As we look to the future, we cannot be certain of what is ahead of us. Yet we may be sure that a Christian’s life contains no intervention of bad luck, chance, or fate. Nor do the planets mold our lives. Instead, all events are in the hands of God’s loving providence.

What separates families, then, is not the harried schedules (granted, much worse today), but the dearth of happy experiences that bind families together in pure joy. That’s what the book is about. Cowles writes, “Our lives are not totally programmed. We do retain a large measure of freedom in setting priorities and determining responsibilities.” He advocates “the wisdom of the ‘recreative break’”—singing, laughing, playing, telling stories, painting pictures, hiking, and celebrating together. “It opens the windows of the soul. It allows us to get in touch with our own feelings and with each other.”

The book is heartwarming, bringing to mind joyful events of the past. Most importantly, it reveals excellent principles to enrich life for today’s young families. There are ideas to help anyone, any age, drop sparks of joy into other lives and strengthen relationships. Both the psychology and the biblical teaching are sound.

Family Journey into Joy was the denomination-wide study in early 1983. However, it’s an enduring book with pass-along qualities—a nice gift for families outside the church. We’re offering it once more because we don’t want anyone to miss this special, life-rejuvenating treat.

THE HALFHEARTED ARE DANGEROUS

One of the rich experiences of my spiritual pilgrimage was a careful reading of a three-volume edition of the Journal and Letters of Francis Asbury. Asbury united a personal quest for holiness with the responsibility of guiding American Methodism in its early years. His intense concern to be holy, and to have a holy church, led to rigorous enforcement of the Methodist discipline. Sometimes preachers and laymen chafed under his efforts to maintain this discipline. Asbury’s commitment and courage are evidenced in a Journal entry that reads, “I cannot suffer myself to be guided by half-hearted Methodists.”

We have reached a time when superintendents and pastors will need great courage if they are not to be guided by halfhearted Nazarenes. Some preachers and laymen are lukewarm, if not ice cold, where our doctrines and standards of holiness are concerned. They betray a heritage that was purchased and established at the cost of blood, sweat, and tears.

We have churches where the doctrine of entire sanctification is seldom or never proclaimed, churches where self-help psychology with a religious tincture has been substituted for the gospel of Jesus Christ. We have churches where “leading” members, elected to governing boards, blatantly violate our standards of behavior. Enough of these troubles have emerged to cause legitimate concern about an epidemic.

The halfhearted could never have founded our church and the halfhearted cannot preserve it. They may preserve something that bears our name, but it will shorn of the creed, spirit, vision, ethics, and passion that have been our very reason for existence.

No one who reads me frequently can accuse me honestly of ancestor worship or status-quo mentality. I am frankly concerned that we not lose what permits us to be accurately designated as a holiness church. Carnality should be present in the church, for we should have people there in all stages of spiritual development. But carnality should not be in the drive seat.

GOSSIP DESTROYS

A church in Nebraska, in its order of service, listed as the sermon topic “Gossip.” Immediately following was listed the hymn “I Love to Tell the Story.”

In my study is a framed photograph of the print shop at Pilot Point, Tex., where the old Holiness Evangel was published. The enlarged photo was given me through the kindness of Steve Cooley, our archivist. Fastened to one table in the print shop is a sign that reads, “Speak evil of no man.” We still need the admonition. The equipment and clothing in the picture are outdated, but not this moral injunction.

Gossip is a serious problem in the church. Wagging tongues have bludgeoned reputations, shattered influences, and destroyed careers. The gossip’s tongue is the enemy of unity and peace. It drips with the poison of suspicion and dissension. Gossip builds nothing up, tears everything down. Gossip is the very opposite of the love that covers a multitude of sins.

Even when a gossip tells the truth, he does so for evil reasons. He doesn’t want to help the subject or object of his gossiping. He seeks to exploit another in order to ingratiate himself. He tries to worm his way into someone’s favor by peddling matters injurious to others, not present to defend or to explain. Gossip is not weakness, it is cowardice.

Most gossips prefer to regard themselves as reporters, “I thought you ought to know” is a favorite phrase with them. Their real purpose is not to inform but to disinform. They delight in the wounds they inflict.

John Wesley, in one of his letters “to a young disciple” writes, “Of all gossiping, religious gossiping is worst: It adds hypocrisy to uncharitableness, and factually does the work of the devil in the name of the Lord.” Discord among the people of God is evil, when discourse does not excuse the gossip makes for his divisive tongue.

According to Proverbs 6:19, sowing discord among the brethren is on God’s hate list.

Don’t lend your ears to those who give their tongue vent. An old proverb says, “Who speaks ill of another will speak ill of you to others.”
ome exercise mastery without mercy. Loveless power has nearly destroyed the world. Others are merciful without mastery. Powerless love only mocks our needs. But Christ combines perfect mastery and mercy, strength and sympathy, lordship and love.

JESUS, THE WEIGHT LIFTER

The last service of the camp meeting was over. The tent was rapidly emptying. A little fellow, about 12 years old, came up to the platform to give me a god-bye hug. He had been at the altar earlier.

“How are you, friend?” I asked.

“Better now,” he answered. “I feel like a 50-pound weight has been lifted from my back.”

I remember the feeling! Life’s heaviest burden is the burden of sin with its guilt. When that load is lifted by the hands of the Lord, how light and free one feels! We used to sing often, “I remember when my burdens rolled away.” Can anyone ever really forget that?

Think what a burden Jesus stooped to bear when He died for our sins. “The Lord laid on Him the iniquity of us all.” Atlas with the world on his shoulders had it easy compared to Christ with the sins of the world on His heart. Only the Son of God was strong enough to carry that burden, and it took His life.

To bear your own burdens is tough. To bear one another’s burdens is harder still. But to bear the burdens of the entire fallen race is a feat of love and might that blows our minds—and that is what Jesus did at Calvary.

The day my little friend lost his burden I had expounded the story of the 10 lepers who were healed by Christ. Those stricken men had prayed, “Master, have mercy on us.” Some exercise mastery without mercy. Loveless power has nearly destroyed the world. Others are merciful without mastery. Powerless love only mocks our needs. But Christ combines perfect mastery and mercy, strength and sympathy, lordship and love.

That Sunday night, as Dr. Edward Lawlor preached, a boy—and a host of other needy folks—discovered that Christ both feels for us and meets our needs.

Jesus is the greatest weight lifter of all time. “Behold the Lamb of God, who takes away the sin of the world.” The greatest burden is lifted by the greatest Person with the greatest strength! Let His name be praised!
ence as a “door opener” to the crux of the matter, the process of growth in holiness. And yet, as Brother Conn so aptly observes, “we are sanctified by a presence, not a process.” Let us teach and preach not only sanctification, but even more so its reason for existence: to allow us to enter into, and maintain by God’s grace, a selfless, loving, holy, serving relationship with God himself.

POSITIVE APPROVAL

The article by W. E. McCumber in the June issue on being positive was excellent.

I, too, am troubled by a concept of positives that ignores or belittles sin. God does not ignore it; therefore we have no right to either.

I'm glad to see the Herald speaking out on some of the issues that have presented themselves to us in the past few years.

True, being a Christian is not all dos and don’ts, but if we are going to preach “God is love” we must also present the other side of the story. The greatest love a pastor can show his congregation is to preach God’s Word completely even if some may think it negative preaching. After all, what good has a pastor done if he gives us soft positive sermons and many of his people are lulled into hell.

KEEP ON HOPING

I would like to thank the Nazarene pastor who shared his story, “Let the Homecoming Party Begin for My Prodigal,” in the June 1 edition.

We have two teenagers in our family that have turned from God and their Christian upbringing, but we're trusting in God's promises and not giving up hope that they'll turn back to God.

TUESDAY MORNING in our parsonage is usually very busy. There is always much to do before the ladies gather for prayer at 10 a.m. That “special Tuesday” was no different.

Around 8:30 the telephone rang. My husband was gone and the older children had left for school. I answered. It was one of our members. She was calling to inform us that her mother, hospitalized for gall bladder surgery several days earlier, had been taken into intensive care. Hours earlier, complications had developed requiring additional surgery. She asked me to give the pastor the message.

In a short time my husband returned. I conveyed the news regarding Helen's condition. He prepared to leave for the hospital, an hour's distance away, expressing a wish that I accompany him. Since my mother was visiting us at the time, we didn't have to consider what to do with our little one. However, there was the question of the ladies’ prayer group.

Quickly it passed through my mind to share with the ladies this urgent prayer request and let them make the decision. I called each one who attended and asked them all to especially remember Helen in prayer. She was not a Christian and her family was concerned. The ladies agreed I should make the trip with the pastor and promised to be much in prayer for God's leading.

Arriving at the hospital, we found the situation grim. Most of the family had spent the night and concern showed on every face. We went into the intensive care unit and found Helen attached to tubes, needles, and machines. She had met the pastor before and seemed pleased to see him again. As we stood beside her bed a miracle happened. My husband told Helen that all of them had prayed for her and that others had prayed for her. She opened her eyes and said, “I'm not going to die!”

God's presence filled the room and Helen accepted Christ as her personal Savior. It seemed to us that through her eyes. She could not talk or use her hands, she spoke with us through her eyes.

God's presence filled the room and Helen accepted Christ as her personal Savior. It seemed to us that afterwards her body relaxed. There was a very noticeable change, even though much of her movement was restricted by machines. That Tuesday morning, while our ladies prayed, a brand-new child was born into the Kingdom.

We visited Helen on the days that followed. She was never again responsive. Her condition steadily worsened. On Wednesday, February 23, she went to be with Jesus.

How wonderful it is to know that our Heavenly Father guides us daily! I thank Him for that Tuesday morning, and especially for my pastor husband whom God used to speak to Helen. And I thank God, too, for Christian women who know how to touch heaven. It was a “special Tuesday,” one I shall never forget.

COVER COMMENDED

I wanted to say how beautiful your front cover was for the month of June 1983.

The innocent look on that child's face has blessed me so richly! It reminds me of the look in a child's eyes when he or she will see Jesus face-to-face. Of course, the bride is absolutely beautiful also.

Thank you for touching my life with this picture!

May God bless you all!

He was honored at a sports banquet in May, along with other MVPs in various sports. Conway led the offensive line from his tackle position.

Coach Ken Richardson was named coach of the year in NAIA District 20 because of the team’s 6-3 record, which led the offensive line from his tackle position.

After 15 years of research in the United States, England, and France, 50 interviews and endless correspondence, Dr. Noel Riley Fitch has completed a major literary history of Paris in the ‘20s and ‘30s. Sylvia Beach and the Lost Generation is a lively chronicle of Miss Beach, patron of book lovers and independent little publishers around the world. Shakespeare and Company, her Left Bank bookshop, lending library, and publishing house, was port of call for most writers of the modernist period.

Mark A. Hamilton has completed the doctor of education degree in instructional development with a specialization in educational media and technology at Boston University. Dr. Hamilton studied under Dr. G. F. McVey, internationally known as a leader in the field of Ergonomics and Human Factors in Design.

A doctor of ministry degree was awarded to Max Harris, May 14, 1983 from Midwestern Baptist Seminary, Kansas City. Dr. Harris is from Nederland, Tex., and graduated from Lamar University, Beaumont, Tex., in 1973 with bachelor of science degrees in chemistry and biology. He was employed for Texaco as a chemist before entering Nazarene Theological Seminary in 1976. He graduated magna cum laude with the master of divinity degree in 1978.

Gerry and his wife, Ellen, and two daughters moved to Fitchburg in September 1982.

Mr. Dalton Knauss, member of Scottsdale, Ariz., First Church, has been elected president of the Advanced Technology Group of Square D Corporation, headquartered in Palatine, Ill.

Square D is a multinational electrical and technology firm with over 25,000 employees worldwide. Knauss sold his General Semiconductor Industries firm in Tempe to Square D but remains chairman of that board. Election as president brought membership on the Board of Directors of Square D Corporation.

Mr. Knauss serves on the Board of Directors of Arizona Nazarene Lands, Inc., one of 15 businessmen on that board, whose purpose is to acquire land in strategic locations for church planting in Arizona and southern Nevada. Mr. Franklin Cook serves as executive administrator for ANLI.

Rev. Gerry Whetstone was recently selected as one of the Outstanding Young Men of America. Gerry is the pastor of Fitchburg, Mass., church.

Gerry was recognized for his work in the community in Tallmadge, Ohio. There he served on the school board and was president of the Tallmadge Ministerial Association. He also served as a member of a resource committee for the city. On the Akron District he served as the NYI president.

Gerry was president of the Akron District, as Pastor Gary Jones looks on. The money is to be used at the district center. The Marksville church has just completed a major new couples’ dormitory to be constructed at the district center. Brother Ouzts told Rev. West, “You don’t know how good this makes me feel to be able to give this to my Heavenly Father because He has been so good to me.” Mr. Ouzts has been a member of the Marksville, La., church for more than 50 years. He and his late wife, Eula, and her late sister, Berta (Henry) Harris, formerly of Bethany, Okla.

Dr. Hamilton graduated from Eastern Nazarene College (1980). From 1976 to 1980 he served as associate minister to youth at Dallas Central Church.

Dr. Hamilton and his wife, Roxie Ann, presently reside in Quincy, Mass., where he serves as head resident counselor at Eastern Nazarene College. He will begin his fourth year teaching in the college’s Communication Arts Department in the fall.

He and his late wife, Eula, and her late sister, Berta (Henry) Harris, have been strong supporters of the district camp meeting, home missions and the total church program. The Marksville church has just completed a relocation and building program. Mr. Ouzts was a major contributor.
Merritt J. Nielson has completed four years of productive work for Media Services, Division of Communications, and has accepted the position of associate pastor at the Wollaston, Mass., church on the campus of Eastern Nazarene College. He began his new assignment August 21.

Paul Skiles, Media Services director, reluctantly accepted Nielson’s resignation. He cited several significant projects accomplished under Mr. Nielson’s supervision as director of 16-mm productions and church media utilization.

Among the films he produced were: They Cry in the Night, The Sun Never Sets in the Morning, and A Church for Tomorrow. He was also the project director for the media-outreach campaign developed for the Church of the Nazarene in Rotterdam, the Netherlands. They completed a four-year specialized assignment for the Division of World Mission in 1979. Their work included Dutch language literature development, lay training, and music.

Nielson is a graduate of Eastern Nazarene College and Nazarene Theological Seminary. He is the coauthor of Watering the Roots and the author of A Sower Went Forth to Sow. He is the editor of the newly released Church Communications Sourcebook published by Beacon Hill Press of Kansas City. In addition to membership in several professional organizations, he is a member of the Board of Directors of Victory Films, Inc., Arcadia, Calif.

Merritt Nielson is married to the former Linda Teague. They have two children: Merritt Jeremy and Jennifer Lynelle.

OUR COLLEGES AND SEMINARIES

MANC COMPLETES CAPITAL CAMPAIGN

Mid-America Nazarene College and President Curtis Smith announce the completion of the Cornerstone of Wisdom Capital Campaign for library facilities and science facilities. By July 1, 1983, the college needed to raise 2.53 million in order to meet the challenge grant offered by the Mabee Foundation of Tulsa.

Dr. Roger Parrott, chief development officer and campaign director, reports over 7,000 friends of MANC, corporations, and foundations gave $2,570,375 in the campaign. This total, added to the Mabee Foundation’s $750,000 grant, brings the total raised to 3,320,375 for the project. This three-quarter million dollar gift is the largest foundation grant ever given to a Nazarene College.

With just three days remaining before the deadline, $525,000 was still needed. Two major gifts were received in the final hours in order to complete the campaign successfully. Gifts for the campaign included $1,311,894 from individuals; $1,255,000 from foundations; $375,000 from the president’s seed faith partners; $286,481 from estate gifts; and $122,000 from corporations.

This is the largest capital campaign in the history of the college, raising over three times as much as any previous campaign. Construction on the new Mabee 39,000 sq. ft. library will begin during the late fall of this year.

Dr. Terroll Ramsey, Sapulpa, Okla., and Jim Luthye, Perry, Okla., provided the special music. Rev. Bill Hilton, Tulsa, Okla., shared how he was converted while a student at OSU. Dr. Steve Forsythe, Olathe, Kans., offered the morning prayer and Betty Mahoney Lyles, Yukon, Okla., brought the morning message.

The Nazarene Student Center at OSU was first operated for several years by University Church of the Nazarene. In 1980, the decision was made that the ministry could best be accomplished under the direction of the district. Thus, in 1980, the Northwest Oklahoma District accepted the sponsorship of the campus ministry to OSU. Currently, the center is reaching 50 students weekly, with many more prospects from the 23,000 student population. The director of the Nazarene Student Center is Rev. Wesley D. Meisner, an OSU alumnus and a 1975 graduate of Nazarene Theological Seminary.

The student government officers at Trevecca Nazarene College have been elected for the 1983-84 school year. Pictured (l. to r.) are: Rocky Jenkins, president; Julie Smith, vice-president of religious life; Eddie Savage, treasurer; Shelley Archer, Darda editor; Nancy Abell, secretary; Linda Dickens, Trev-Echoes editor; Paul Frank, attorney general; Bev Adams, vice-president; Bill Sharpe, Trevecca intramural athletics (TIA) vice-president. Not pictured is Darryl Murray, vice-president of social life.

Dwight Moody Gunter (l.) and W. Talmadge Johnson (r.) were awarded honorary doctor of divinity degrees by Trevecca Nazarene College at the 1983 Commencement exercises. Rev. Moody Gunter is superintendent of the South Carolina District. The South Carolina native is a 1959 Trevecca graduate. He has attended Nazarene Theological Seminary and the University of South Carolina. After serving pastorates in Tennessee, Missouri, and South Carolina, he was elected district superintendent in 1976. He is vice-chairman of the Board of Trustees of Trevecca. Married to Nina Griggs, they have two sons, Dwight Moody Gunter, Jr., and Dwayne Mark, and reside in Columbia, S.C. Rev. Talmadge Johnson, superintendent of the Tennessee District, holds bachelors and masters degrees from Bethany Nazarene College. Johnson has been general NYPS president and member of the General Board of the Church of the Nazarene. He is a member of the Board of Trustees at Trevecca. After pastorates in Oklahoma, he was elected superintendent of the Mississippi District in 1975. He served in this position until 1980 when he was elected to the Tennessee post. He and his wife, Janelle, have two sons, Michael and Jeffrey, and reside in Nashville.

Students of the Nazarene Student Center at Oklahoma State University, Stillwater, Okla., recently sponsored a Christian concert. Shown is part of the crowd of over 400 attending the concert, held in one of the high-rise dormitories. The featured artist was Carman, a contemporary Christian music artist who has toured recently with the Imperials and the Bill Gaither Trio. Malcolm R. Pavey, a disc jockey from KCFO in Tulsa, was the guest emcee. Twenty-five students were trained in counseling and follow-up, prior to the concert, by Rev. Wes Meisner, director of the Nazarene Student Center. Student prayer cells were organized several weeks before by the students. Seventy-five students responded to the prayer invitation following the concert, including a starting player on the varsity basketball team. The ministry of the Nazarene Student Center at OSU has had 50 new converts this year.

NAZARENE MARRIAGE ENRICHMENT MINISTRIES

The following couples have achieved certification after having served as a Provisional Leader Couple for a minimum of one year. Each has demonstrated a deep commitment to sharing the gospel of their marriage, for the gospel of Jesus Christ guides their relationship.

Nazarene leader couples assume that God has not given them a deep spiritual love and close companionship just to keep to themselves. Rather, they are prepared to put it on “the lampstand, and it gives light to all . . .” (Matthew 5:15, NASB).

Dr. Cecil Inman, professor of writing curriculum at Bethany Nazarene College, recently spoke at the second annual banquet of the King's Scribes on "The Creative Process as Art." There were 38 members and guests present in the Floyd Center of Bethany, Okla., First Church. The King's Scribes is a Christian writers' club that meets the first Saturday of the month. Prof. Ethel Dickerman is the director, Mrs. Noel Braswell is assistant director, and Mrs. Milton Brasher is secretary-treasurer. Five writers, earning book awards in several categories, were Mrs. Helen Rothwell, Mrs. Mary Maness, Mrs. Vivian Stewart, Rev. Rick Short, and Mrs. Wilma Goodman. The group reported 70 published entries in various periodicals since last August.

FAYE ALLEN AWARDED FLMI DESIGNATION

Faye Allen, senior underwriter and insurance supervisor for Pensions and Benefits Services, has been awarded the "Fellow of the Life Management Institute" (FLMI) diploma and professional designation by the Life Office Management Association.

The association is a research and educational association of life insurance companies operating in the United States, Canada, and a number of other countries. Among its activities is the sponsorship of an educational program intended primarily for home office and branch office employees of these companies.

Ms. Allen recently completed course work in the areas of "Fundamentals of Life Insurance" and "Advanced Life Insurance," which led to the FLMI diploma and designation. She resides in Olathe, Kans., where she is a member of the College Church of the Nazarene.

HARK, THE HERALD ANGEL
A musical drama by RON E. LONG and JOANNE BARRETT, arranged and produced by TOM FETTKE. The scene is heaven, where the angel choir is preparing to announce the birth of God’s Son. An inquisitive young angel named "Hark" wants to know all about it. Thus the music and dialog provides wonderful moments of "finding out." The story is fun and poignant, with a good salvation message. For unison or optional two-part choir. Parts for adults/teens, as well as children. Performance time: approx. 40 minutes.

Floyd W. Hawkins, noted Nazarene songwriter and former editor at Lillenas Publishing Company, was honored in a special musical tribute at the 75th Anniversary Celebration held during the Colorado District Assembly on July 13, 1983, at Denver First Church.

Seven choirs from various churches in Colorado were organized into a 225-voice chorus, accompanied by a 30-piece orchestra, which performed selections from the Floyd Hawkins/Otis Skillings musical "Discovery." The program was directed by Steve Jones, minister of music at Colorado Springs First Church.

Floyd Hawkins was music editor at Lillenas Publishing Company from 1957 until 1975. He had served as a pastor for 19 years in churches in Washington, Oregon, and California. He also traveled as a song evangelist. A number of his hymns appear in the Nazarene hymnal "Worship in Song." His songs have been used in the campaigns of Billy Sunday and Billy Graham and have literally been heard around the world.

Though retired, Rev. Hawkins was persuaded to write lyrics for a song composed by Mr. Jones especially for this occasion, "Melody of Love." Other selections performed during the evening were: "Willing to Take the Cross," "I Met God in the Morning," "God's Great Grace," "This Pair of Hands," and Mr. Hawkins' best-known song, "I've Discovered the Way of Gladness." During the program Mr. Hawkins gave his recollections—both humorous and poignant—concerning the history of the Church of the Nazarene, with which he has been closely linked since its beginning in 1908. (Floyd was born in 1904.)

Floyd and his wife, Ruth, attend Colorado Springs First Church and are the parents of three daughters: Mrs. Ruth Hufford of Phoenix, Mrs. Caroline Campbell of Kansas City, and Mrs. Rodlyn Davis of Littleton, Colo. The entire family was present for this occasion, and the Hawkinses were also given a surprise reception in honor of their 50th wedding anniversary.

Approximately 2,000 Nazarenes were in attendance for this service.

RECOMMENDATION
REV MIKE HELMS and his wife, GLORIA, were recently registered as evangelists by the Northeastern Indiana District. They are both graduates of the Nazarene Bible College. Mike has proved to be a productive minister of the gospel, and his wife an effective singer. They are able to care for both the music and preaching. I commend them to our churches as ministers of the gospel. They may be reached at 3918 E. Pikes Peak. Colorado Springs, CO 80909.—Bruce T. Taylor, Northeastern Indiana district superintendent.

Evangelists may be reached through Evangelism Ministries’ toll-free number, 800-821-2154.

VITAL STATISTICS
LONGTIME PROFESSOR DIES
James R. Garner was born in Blossom, Tex., Jan­uary 24, 1903, and died March 31, 1983. He went to Bethany Okla., as a student in 1922 where he re­ceived his A.B. degree. He received his B.S. from the University of Oklahoma in 1926 and also his M.A. in political science in 1927. He later received the Ph.D. degree in 1934 from the University of Iowa.

Dr. Garner invested 35 years in Nazarene institu­tions. He taught for 3 years at Northwest Nazarene College, and 5 years at Olivet Nazarene College, returning to Bethany Nazarene College, his alma mater, in 1948 to complete a stay of 27 years, con­cluding with his retirement in 1972.

Dr. Garner was an active citizen and churchman. He served as a delegate to general assemblies from 1920 to 1960. He was a nephew of John Nance (Cactusjacks) Garner, vice-president under President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

He is survived by his wife, Jewel, two daughters, Ann Springer of Tampa, Fla., and Ruth Boyd of Oklah­oma City, one sister, Blanche Garner of Bethany, and six grandchildren.

PIONEER CHURCH WORKER DIES
The memorial service for Marie M. Sanner who passed away July 21 in Los Alamitos, Calif., was held July 26 in the Church of Our Fathers, Forest Lawn Memorial-Park, Cypress, Calif. Rev. Jerry W. White, pastor of Long Beach, Calif., First Church officiated. Two sons, Dr. Elwood Sanner of North­west Nazarene College and Rev. Harold Sanner of San Jose, Calif., participated in the service.

Mrs. Sanner was born on July 7, 1911, in Cape Girardeau, Mo., the daughter of Rev. and Mrs. T. A. Mercer. She married Asa Everett Sanner in eastern Colorado on July 25, 1914, where their families had homesteaded. From that time until their retirement in 1966, she and her husband ministered in the Church of the Nazarene, including pastorates in Colorado and California and, for 31 years, the district super­tendency in six western states: Colorado, Idaho, Oregon, Utah, Wyom­ing, and California.

Mrs. Sanner taught school for 10 years in three states: Missouri, Colorado, and Idaho. She was active in missionary work and served on the General Council of the Nazarene World Missionary Society for 12 years. She and her husband also served for 14 years as superintendents of the Casa Robles Missionary Home in Temple City. Calif. They both taught at NNC for one year in the early 1920s.

She is survived by her husband, Aka Everette Sanner of Seal Beach, Calif., one daughter, Mrs. George (Ruth) Wormser, and also of Seal Beach; four sons, Elwood of Nampa, Wesley of Pasadena, Calif., and Donald of San Jose, Calif., and Kenneth of Menlo Park, Calif.; 17 grandchildren, and 15 great-grandchildren.

SCRIPTURES A MAJOR DISPLAY ITEM AT HUNGARY'S NATIONAL BOOK WEEK. A wide array of Bibles and New Testaments were displayed openly at one of the largest and most attractive of the many bookstalls set up along the principal streets of central Budapest during Hungary's National Book Week in June.

Participating jointly in the stall, which was located in Kálvin Square, one of main crossroads of the city, were the Hungarian Bible Council and several major Protestant denominations.

Dr. Latin E. Holingren, former general secretary of the American Bible Society and now a consultant, was visiting the Bible Council in Budapest at the time. He reports that sales were brisk throughout the week and that the Council staff were very excited by the unprecedented opportunity for offering the Scriptures in this way.

Commenting on the success of the new venture, the Bible Council's divisional director, Dr. Kalman Tarr, described it as an indication of the "improving relationship between the State and the churches, while it also attests to an interest by people in the activities of this Council."

PUSH FOR TIGHTER DRUNK-DRIVING LAWS GIVES RENEWED VIGOR TO WCTU. The 29th Triennial Convention of the World's Women's Christian Temperance Union convened in Itasca, Ill., on July 13 with an expected attendance of 1,000 delegates and visitors from around the globe. Mrs. Kermit S. Edgar, president of the National WCTU of the U.S.A., and the convention's official hostess, said, "We look forward to... learning what the various nations have accomplished during the last three years, and chart the course the world union will follow... as it enters its second century of humanitarian work."

The World WCTU, like its mother organization, the National WCTU of the U.S.A., is an educational organization, which is experiencing renewed vitality related to concerns over initiating stricter drunk-driving laws. It is a group of interdenominational, nonpartisan Christian women dedicated to the education of all people around the globe on the harmful effects that alcoholic beverages, other narcotic drugs, and tobacco have on the human body.

CHURCH PROPERTY AND BARS. The U.S. Supreme Court declared unconstitutional a Massachusetts law that gave churches and schools the power to veto the issuing of liquor licenses within 500 feet of their property.

Chief Justice Warren Burger wrote the 8-1 opinion and claimed that the law violated the constitutionally required separation of the church and state. The ruling does not automatically overturn similar laws in 27 other states.

LARGEST GOLD HOARD EVER FOUND IN ISRAEL UNCOVERED IN CAPERNAUM. Archaeologists digging at Capernaum, a site on the north­west shore of the Sea of Galilee, have uncovered the largest gold hoard ever found in Israel. Buried under a paving stone in the courtyard of a Capernaum house were 282 gold coins minted in Damascus between 695 and 743 A.D. during the Omayyad dynasty. The July/August issue of Biblical Archaeology Review contains photos of the coins and the story of their discovery.

Capernaum is known from the Bible as a city where Jesus lived and ministered. Previous excavations at the site have revealed the remains of an ancient synagogue, one of the most beautiful in Israel, and an octagonal church, built over what some scholars believe was the house where Jesus lived.
REV MICHAEL PARKS, 33, died Apr. 30 in Salina, Kan. Funeral services were conducted by District Superintendent C. Marselle Knight. Rev. Parks pastored the Eureka, Kans. church. He is survived by his wife, Lynette; one son, Jason; his mother; one brother; his grandmother; and a stepgrandmother.

ANNIVERSARIES

MR. AND MRS. JOHN G. TOWNSEND celebrated their golden wedding anniversary July 24 at the Ramada Inn in North Platte, Neb., with Rev Herb Ketterling as host pastor. Music and a special program featuring the ladies of the Townsend's were presented by the Townsend children and grandchildren: Rev. and Mrs. Robert A. Britt, pastor of Melwood Church of the Nazarene in Upper Marlboro, Md., and daughters Janet and Jill, and John Lyie Townsend and wife, Carc, with sons Jim and Tim of North Platte. Mr. and Mrs. Pat Pardue (Robin Britt) and baby Tiffany of Port Arthur, Tex., were unable to attend.

The Townsend's were married July 25, 1933, and moved from Purlcell, Okla., to Nebraska in 1934. Mr. Townsend worked in electronics, which led to starting radio station KULT, a 5,000-watt Christian station in North Platte that celebrates 25 years of ministry this year. Mr. and Mrs. Townsend both belong to Nazarene Amateur Radio Fellowship (NARF).

REVIVAL ON SCHEDULE

Because of prayer, revival came "early" to the Congo, WA., church. When a personal visit was made in a home, a woman accepted Christ. God began working in her life and her relationship with her husband was healed. Many people began praying for her husband.

The revival with Evangelist Clyde Morris came as scheduled, although revival had already begun. Advertising had been distributed and every Sunday School enrollee had received information about the revival. Prayer had continued and the week before the revival a 24-hour prayer chain was held for the entire week.

During the week of revival the lady who had accepted Christ in her home was sanctified. Her husband and two teenagers attended with her throughout the week.

One family who had previously attended the church, but had not come for some time, renewed their commitment to the Lord. When the son-in-law saw his father-in-law go to the altar, he realized he needed spiritual help, and he too accepted Christ. They all set new priorities in their lives. The father was sanctified during the revival.

Many other decisions were made during the revival: eight people were sanctified and seven people accepted Christ. The pastor is holding a class for new Christians, "Discipleship—Your New Life in Christ."

Pastor Roger Myatt says revival is continuing, "Our people's faith in God is running high."

PRAYERS ARE ANSWERED

Prayer was the catalyst for revival at the Roanoke, VA., First Church. Rev. Francis Ketner, Jr., said, "The real secret for revival is prayer and personal preparation." Several months before the revival, the church board had special prayer meetings and every group that met designated a time to pray for the revival. Rev. Ketner also encouraged and challenged the people from the pulpit to "expect revival."

The church advertised through posters, bumper stickers, radio, and two large newspapers ads. The church also did a lot of personal visiting and knocking on doors handing out the special "Possess the Promise" flyers.

Each service began around the altar with 10 minutes of prayer. Attendance was excellent the entire week, and several nights there were over 200 people in the service. Every night there was an average of 30 teens. The teens brought their friends and worked around the altar.

Even though Evangelist Bob Hoots couldn't be at the first service because of car trouble, the Holy Spirit came and revival was on. A total of 100 people made decisions during the week of revival.

Through the service of Moving Nazarenes, the church received the name of a couple in the area. They had been members in the Church of the Nazarenes, the church received the name of a couple in the area. They had been members in the Church of the Nazarenes while in Ohio, but had not attended anywhere since they moved to Virginia. Rev. Ketner and his associate pastor visited them several times. They had no intention of coming to church at Roanoke First. But they did attend the revival. During one of the services they went to the altar, got back to the Lord, and have joined the church.

Another family was visited prior to the revival and invited to attend the services. The husband and wife came and during the revival they went to the altar. They attended every night, and on Easter their whole family was present.

The associate pastor met a lady at the Prime Time Retreat who told him about her sister living in Roanoke. He visited the lady's sister and invited her to the revival. She came and went to the altar for prayer.

The gospel seeds that were sown previously were reaped during revival. There is a ripple affect of revival in the lives of the people that is touching people outside the church.

THE DIFFERENCE BRINGS DECISION

A middle-aged executive and his wife started attending Cedar Rapids, IA. First Church. The husband had been reading his Bible and listening to Christian radio programs, and he accepted Christ in his home. After this experience, the man went to his pastor to talk to him about what had happened. This pastor, from another denomination, was not receptive to his conversion. The man looked for another church, and he and his wife started attending Cedar Rapids First Church, but they informed Pastor Herbert Rogers that they would not join, only attend. Their married daughter also began coming with them.

The church began preparing for their Simultaneous Revival with Rev. Udell Moss. Rev. Rogers preached a series of messages on "The Meaning of Revival." Cottage prayer meetings were scattered throughout the various sections of the city. They held special prayer meetings and a chain of prayer the entire day before the revival started. They advertised through newsletter, newspaper, radio, and with a giant banner outside the church.

Attendance averaged over 200 every night, and in every service there were people at the altar. There were eight professions of faith, along with other decisions. The executive and his wife attended the revival, their first one ever. Because of what they saw and experienced during the revival, they decided to join the church. They said they had never before seen the love of God expressed in lives of people like they had seen there.
Over 800 people worshiped in the new sanctuary of the Warren, Mich., Warren Woods Church on Sunday, May 15. The church was started in the summer of 1964 with 20 members. The first home was Ridgewood Elementary School. Since then, eight-and-a-half acres of land was purchased and six building programs have followed. The present church membership is 387, the Sunday School averaged 413 last year, and morning worship averaged 505. Rev. James Mellish has been pastor from the very beginning of the church. Wes Bittenbender is minister of youth and music. Chet Decker is minister of Christian education. The new sanctuary seats 1,000 and is valued at $1,300,000. It was built for $650,000, with hundreds of hours of donated labor. The indebtedness is $550,000.

The Canadian Hills Church was organized April 24, with 26 charter members. The new church, begun by the Southwest Oklahoma District, will be located in the western suburbs of Oklahoma City. Rev. Ken Hathaway is the pastor.

Shown is the new home mission church in Beulah, N.D. Services started in a restaurant meeting room in June of 1982. On June 19, 1983, this new “Mobile Home Chapel” was dedicated. There were 71 present for dedication. The chapel will seat 85 with 4 classrooms for the growing Sunday School. Total cost was $30,000 and they are averaging 25 in attendance. Rev. Paul Myers is the pastor. District Superintendent E. Thomas Bailey and Advisory Board member Harold Lehrke were present for the dedication.

Mass. Steve, his wife, Laurie, and Tom attended the celebration. Among the gifts received from family, friends, and congregational members was a trip to the Holy Land.

The Manchester, Conn., church celebrated a Heritage Weekend (June 25-26) with a tent meeting held on the grounds. Rev. Manual Chavier brought dynamic messages to the Connecticut Valley Zone Rally held the first day. The various churches provided special music along with Higher Ground, a music team from Eastern Nazarene College.

The weekend was planned to reflect the tent gatherings of the early Nazarenes. Sunday morning worship was conducted by Pastor Neale McLain, clad in a frock coat and wing collar. The congregation was asked to wear 1908 fashions. There was a great spirit of rejoicing and praising God for the holiness heritage as people worshiped and picnicked together on the grounds. Mrs. Florence Wood chaired the Heritage Committee which has planned special events all year.

The Manchester congregation was formed in 1898 as the John Wesley Pentecostal Society. The group joined the denomination in 1927.

SEPTEMBER 15, 1983
PERSONAL EVANGELISM TRAINING CLASS FOR KANSAS CITY AREA CHURCHES

The Personal Evangelism Class sponsored by Nazarene Theological Seminary met each Thursday night from February 3 to May 12, 1983. Pastors, laypersons, and seminarians from 13 churches in the Kansas City area met for classroom training and then made on-the-job calls. Rev. Charles "Chic" Shaver, professor of evangelism at Nazarene Theological Seminary and minister of outreach at Kansas City First Church, taught the basic training. Beverly Burgess, from Evangelism Ministries and director of personal evangelism at Kansas City First Church, taught the advanced class.

More than 140 calls were made in the homes of prospects, and 71 persons made the commitments to Christ during this semester. Kansas City First Church has received 42 members in an eight-month period from among those reached through personal evangelism. These classes have been taught since 1976 and usually meet at NTS.

A Cambodian served as translator to present the gospel to Cambodians while learning to present the gospel himself. New converts are shown doing Basic Bible Studies that were translated into Khmer. Pictured (r. to l.) are Sokhoeurt Suos, Cambodian trainer in personal evangelism; Janet Zollars, a trainer; Maly Suo, Sokhoeurt's sister; Seng Ly, Sokhoeurt's wife; Sophon Ith, Sokhoeurt's mother; and Robert Hopper outreach assistant.

Each local church has been supplied with several "prayer reminder dots" to place on their watches as a reminder to pray. Additional dots can be purchased at most stationery stores.
TERRELL C. SANDERS UNDERGOES SURGERY

Dr. Terrell C. Sanders, Jr., president of Nazarene Theological Seminary, underwent surgery and pathology tests on August 10 at Trinity Lutheran Hospital in Kansas City. The surgical procedure was completed on August 23.

Dr. Sanders expects to be released from the hospital and to have recovered sufficiently to participate in the new fall term in early September.

EVANGELISTS HOSPITALIZED

Evangelist Calvin Jantz had surgery on August 8 in Kansas City to remove a small tumor from the brain. The surgery is believed to be successful. Meetings have been cancelled until October 1.

Evangelist Vernon Crandall fell from a hang glider in late June. He sustained fractured legs and 10 ribs broken, and has multiple bruises. He was in a coma but is slowly progressing and was transferred the week of July 28 to Franklin Memorial Hospital, Vicksburg, Mich. He is expected to be in treatment there for several months.

BOND ELECTED PRESIDENT OF PLNC

The Board of Trustees of Point Loma Nazarene College met August 12 and elected Rev. Jim Bond president of the college.

Rev. Bond served successfully in pastorsates in Wyoming, Oklahoma, Idaho, and Colorado. In addition, he has been president of Nazarene Youth International, missionary in Brazil, and assistant professor of practical theology and chaplain at Nazarene Bible College.

Most recently, he was assistant to the president and director of development at Point Loma Nazarene College.

Rev. Bond took some time to consider the offered position, seeking the leadership of the Lord and consulting his colleagues. On August 24, he notified Rev. Paul Benefiel, chairman of the Board of Trustees, of his acceptance.

Rev. Bond is married to the former Sara "Sally" Whitcanack. They have two children, James Clifton, 20, and Cristina Lynn, 18.

HELP FOR THE BRAZIL DISTRICTS

Last month the Hunger and Disaster Relief Fund Committee sent $5,000 to Brazil to assist Nazarenes caught in the worst flooding in 50 years in Southern Brazil. One of the newspapers in Brazil referred to it as the "worst natural disaster in Brazil's history."

Of the $5,000 sent, $2,000 was designated by the local Nazarenes for the rebuilding of a parsonage in Curitiba. The parsonage was totally flooded—water in a nearby river rose to over 45 feet above the normal level. The roofing, electrical wiring, plumbing, bathroom fixtures, light fixtures, etc., were salvaged from the flooded parsonage. A bricklayer, an electrician, and a carpenter from the local church offered their time to help rebuild the parsonage.

A further grant of $2,500 for Curitiba will assist the missionaries and local district to complete the rebuilding of the parsonage.

NAZARENE FAMILY KILLED IN CAR ACCIDENT

Karl and Christine Jendry and their 18-year-old son, James, were killed when their car was struck by a semi-truck in late June. The accident occurred near Taylorville, Ill., the afternoon of August 10. Their 2-year-old grandson, Brock Duncan, was also in the car and is in critical condition in a Springfield hospital with broken bones and possible brain damage. Jendrys had been active members of Decatur Trinity Church for many years.

They are survived by a daughter, Nora Duncan (baby's mother). Nora is married to Tim Duncan. They live in Decatur, Ill.
